TALK OF THE PEOPLE.

Sunday Morning.
In spite of all that has been said, I personally find it very hard to believe that the Radical Imperialists will climb down and make their humble submission to Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman at the party meeting on Tuesday next. While there is no question of issue in principle, and if they were to yield now it would show first, that they had gone into the struggle with the pro-Boers without counting the cost; and secondly, that their principles are not strong enough to bear the strain even of such feeble indignation as Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman can command, and which I really believe he sometimes mistakes for resolution.

But one looks for better things than such a surrender from men like Mr. Aquith, Sir Henry Fowler, and Sir Edward Grey, and I have no doubt very little doubt that they will stick to their guns. If the unhappy "C-B" can be persuaded to withdraw a little from the attitude of party pro-Boerism which he has recently taken up, he will probably try to make things uncomfortable for him at the meeting, and will allow him to believe that he is still the leader of the Opposition. But the will, I trust, make it in any case that the Radical Imperialists, and the side of England's enemies, and will not be tarred with their brush whether Sir Henry is or not.

Of course, the position of the Radical Imperialists has been immensely strengthened by the disclosures made in the House on Thursday night. We now know for certain that it is the foolish and wicked speeches of our pro-Boers which have stiffened Oom Paul's back and have kept alive the embers of the war. It cannot be a comfortable thing for an English politician to find that in his reckless desire to damage the Government he has put new life into the enemy, and is responsible for the loss of hundreds of lives which would otherwise have been saved, to say nothing of millions of money. The Radical Imperialists are not going, if they can help it, to be confused in the public mind with that kind of man.

In the meantime, in political circles, everybody is asking, "What will Lord Rosebery do?" Probably he will offer some more or less conciliatory advice, and beyond that nothing. He must know better than anyone else that the leadership of the Opposition is the leadership of the Government, and the one for so long that he has been the one to doubt whether he can give it. The man who aspires to drive a team which includes Sir Edward Grey and Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. Aquith, and Mr. Bryn Roberts, has no security before him, and Lord Rosebery is not overfond of trouble, and detests an atmosphere of intrigue.

Mr. Balfour is the most amiable of men, but when he does hit out there is a wonderful weight behind his blow, as the unfortunate "C-B" discovered on Thursday night. Very rarely has the leader of a great party been so utterly floored and so nearly reduced to spluttering fury as the Radical Leader was then. The passage of arms during which Sir Henry violently objected to be called a pro-Boer, and Mr. Balfour quietly but firmly fixed the epithet upon him, reminded one of nothing so much as the story of the Irishman who complained that someone had called him a liar, and added that with justification for his rage, "Begorrah, or, but he proved it."

You will remember that at that disgraceful meeting at Queen's Hall, the resolution was unanimously amended to "such terms as shall exclude the complete independence of the two Republics." Mr. Lloyd-George, who moved the resolution in its original form, has the face to declare from his place in Parliament that he was "absolutely irresponsible for that amendment."

Now look how his reputation appears to the Radical "Westminster Gazette." On Friday night this is what my contemporary, the most consistently Radical paper in London, said of Mr. Lloyd-George: "But what did Mr. Lloyd-George do? Did he vote against the amendment, or against the amended resolution? No. He suggested that in the first instance Boer independence should be granted. Mr. Lloyd-George was in charge of the resolution, and if he did not agree with the alteration made in it he ought to have made clear his difference at once. In default of any such explanation, it is perfectly fair to assume that he is bound by the Queen's Hall resolution. And Mr. Lloyd-George is a shining light of the Radical party."

I think both English and Americans have managed to put out of their minds that Independence Day celebrates a successful resistance of the Old Country on the part of the New. There is certainly no bitterness of heart as each Fourth of July comes round, and I think that every succeeding year there is less and less in the Americans. It is impossible for either an Englishman or an American to regard the other as a foreigner in the same sense as a Frenchman or a German, and as all the American girls seem to marry English husbands and all the American men marry English wives, we get to feel ourselves more and more closely related every day. Long may it be so!

Most people will feel that Mr. Chamberlain's resolve to introduce a bill which will secure a recognition of the great colonies in the Royal titles has been come to at the right time. It would be a slight on the part of the Empire that their names should be omitted from the titles of the Sovereign who rules equally over us all. By all means let our King's titles express the world-wide character of the Empire over which he reigns.

If it affords the French people any satisfaction to learn on the authority of the late M. Felix Faure that Capt. Marchand did not withdraw from Fashoda at the demand of England, but was only ordered to "continue his programme under the same conditions as prevailed before Gen. Kitchener's intervention, no good man would wish to disturb their belief. They did their best to cut us off from the South, and failed. So long as we have got the territory, they are welcome to all the explanations they please.

ALLEGED SWINDLE. TWO THOUSAND MEN WANTED. SALARY 25 PER WEEK.

NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY.
At Southwark, yesterday, Thomas Aylmer, 35, agent of Weston-st., Bermondsey, was charged with being in the unlawful possession of 14 postal orders for one shilling each.—Det.-insp. Godley, M.D., said the police received a communication from Liverpool that the prisoner was advertising in a Liverpool paper for 2,000 men, and offering 25 per week as wages. Inquiries were made, and it was found that prisoner occupied a room at 157, Weston-st., paying 4s. per week. He entered into occupation last Monday, and during the week he had received over

A THOUSAND LETTERS in reply to this and similar advertisements in other papers. When a person replied to the advertisement, a circular in the following was sent him:—Aylmer's Employment Agency. Established 20 years. Chief office, 157, Weston-st., Bermondsey, London, S.E. Branches at Brighton, Clapham, Penzance, and Putney. 2,000 men wanted at once. Age 20 to 40, for new business. Light, clean work. No experience necessary. Wages 25 per week. Constant employment for steady men. Preference will be given to men from the country and from provincial towns. Two shillings agency fee. Two stamped addressed envelopes and a postal order for one shilling to cover the cost of registration, postage, etc., and promise to pay the agency a further fee of 2s. 10d. one month after if you are suited with employment, and your name will be entered in the agency books for employment. The agency guarantee to suit every man employed within 14 days at a salary of not less than 25s. per week. Should any man not be satisfied or suited with the employment offered him by the agency within 14 days of registration, the agency will advertise his name and requirements in one of the leading London or provincial newspapers, free of charge. Until he is provided with suitable employment. Applicants will be sent a free railway ticket to the agency office to travel to and from the agency office for the purpose of interviewing employers. Applicants will have all expenses paid, and in the case of married men railway fares for wife and children will be allowed by employer. Applicants who arrive too late for interview will be provided with temporary board and lodging until next day.

Branches of the business will be established in most of the principal towns in England, therefore applicants applying at an early date will have an opportunity of working at the branch that is most convenient to them. Railway passes sent to applicants will be available for their use only, and must not be made use of by any other person. Should applicant not make use of his pass it must at once be returned to the agency. Applicants, by giving one day's clear notice, may be met on their arrival at the railway station by one of the agency's agents. N.B.—Men applying this week can be immediately suited with employment over 2,000 vacancies.

THE APPLICATION FORM.
Then followed an application form to be filled up in which the applicant had to state whether he was willing to work in a cloth factory, and willing to learn a new process of cloth manufacture. After an applicant filled up this form, and forwarded it, with a postal order, he would receive a printed letter, as follows:—

"Dear Sir,—We beg to inform you that your name has been registered on the agency books for employment, and that your registered number is 67. This number must be written clearly at the head of any letter you send to the agency. We beg to state that Mr. Aylmer, of the above agency, is about to form a society whose object will be to provide private families, hotels, etc., with domestic servants, and is in want of 2,000 men to act as canvassers for the society. The canvasser will be to call on private families, hotels, etc., and ask them to subscribe to the proposed society. The annual subscription will be 21s. for which subscribers may obtain, at any time and on the shortest notice, any number of servants they require, no charge being made beyond the annual subscription. A man acting as canvasser should be honest, well educated, and be fairly well educated. He will receive a salary of 25s. per week, on the condition that he obtains at least 10 subscribers to the society in one week. Should he not obtain 10 subscribers to the society in one week he will not receive the stipulated salary of 25s. but will receive instead a commission of 5s. for each subscriber he has obtained. On the other hand, a canvasser who obtains more than 10 subscribers in one week will receive, in addition to his salary of 25s., a commission of 10s. for each subscriber he has obtained over 10. Let the agency know at an early date if this work would suit you, and you will receive full particulars with regard to the matter. Should the work not suit you, let us know what the cause of employment you require, and we will advertise your name and requirements until you are provided with suitable employment."

THE ARREST.

Det.-sergt. Smith, M.D., said he went to prisoner's room in Weston-st. on Friday, and asked him for further information regarding the employment offered. Prisoner gave him a circular, and then looked him up and down, and remarked, "I have seen you before. You are a detective, aren't you?" Witness replied that he was, and left. He and Sergt. Monahan kept observations outside, and followed him to the post office in Borough High-st., and arrested him as he was about to change 14 postal orders. His room was 6ft. by 5ft., and contained a bed, a chest of drawers, a table, and chair. In the chest of drawers were 750 letters opened, and 285 unopened. There was also a telegram from Jones, of Cardiff: "Will come up to-morrow if you pay fare on arrival." Prisoner said, "I suppose if I had a flash office in the West-end it would be all right. What is there wrong about it? There is no fraud, is there?" Prisoner said he had offered the applicants employment, and if they did not accept it, he prepared to advertise for other work for them.—Det.-insp. Godley pointed out that prisoner had represented that the agency had been established 20 years, and had branches. Prisoner was remanded, bail being fixed at two sureties in 200s. each.

WALTHAMSTOW TRAGEDY.

CONFLICTING EVIDENCE AT INQUIRY.
Dr. Ambrose, in an inquest on Albert Glover (59), an independent gentleman, lately residing at Essex-grove, who died in Walthamstow Hospital from the effects of a wound in the throat. The evidence of the wife and a lady residing in the house was to the effect that Mr. Glover had been suffering from melancholia, and that on the 25th ult. he became violent, and was seen later with a wound in his throat. The widow said that she and her husband had differences of opinion, but they lived happily together.—Mr. Alfred Hodgkinson, solicitor, coroner for East Middlesex, said that deceased was a very old friend and a relation of his wife's. He wished to contradict the evidence of Mrs. Glover. She said they lived happily together. Witness seldom called without finding them quarrelling.—The Coroner: Do I understand anything to be said by the widow? Witness: I do certainly. When I saw him in the hospital, he said, "Fanny my coming to this, I WAS DRIVEN TO IT."

The Coroner: As a brother coroner, and knowing the law, this is not evidence, if the wife was not present.—Mr. Hodgkinson: He was on his death-bed. If you refuse to accept my evidence, I can't help it; but I can tell something that is evidence. On the 25th ult. I saw the widow in the hospital with the intention of drowning herself.—The Coroner: Is there any other evidence? Witness: No, that is all the "legal" evidence I can give you.—A juror: Do you know what the quarrelling was about? Witness: Will the coroner accept my reply as evidence?—The widow: What he said is false.—Chief Coroner: The widow's statement, which she said was a lie, is evidence that deceased was "off his head" at times. He thought Mr. Hodgkinson must have dropped in at "unlucky times." As a fact, he had interfered, and been told to mind his own business.—After several smart passages of arms between the friends, a verdict was returned that deceased died from a razor wound, but how caused the evidence failed to show.

ROBBERY IN WATERLOO ROAD.

At Southwark, yesterday, Emma Snell, describing herself as an artificial flower maker, of Oulton-street, St. Pancras, was charged with stealing a diamond ring, value 23s. 7d., from 107, Waterloo-road, the property of Abraham Hoffman. The prisoner stated that on Friday afternoon she entered the shop and requested to be shown some rings. He showed her a number, and she put one value 21s. and another value 21s. on one finger. She picked up two others and remarked, "There is another one in the window I would like to see, and I will point it out to you." She went out of the shop, apparently for this purpose, and carrying a bundle on her head.

THE FOUR RINGS WITH HER.

When she got into the street she ran away. He called to his wife to look after the shop, as he could not leave it unattended. He last night of prisoner, but there were cries of "Stop thief." Prisoner was eventually brought back, but the rings had been recovered.

Then followed an application form to be filled up in which the applicant had to state whether he was willing to work in a cloth factory, and willing to learn a new process of cloth manufacture. After an applicant filled up this form, and forwarded it, with a postal order, he would receive a printed letter, as follows:—
